CO-ORDINATION OF SCHOOL SYSTEMS IS PROPOSED BY SUPERINTENDENT WHITE

Urges P. T. A. Federation to Support High School Bond Issue

CHANGES DISCUSSED

Outlines Alternates for Educational Organization on New Basis

At the regular monthly meeting of the Intermediate Parent-Teacher association Wednesday afternoon, Superintendent Richardson D. White set forth clearly the problems which Glendale is facing in the building of a co-ordinated public school system.

In beginning his talk Mr. White said: "Glendale, the fastest growing city in the United States, is not simply a slogan. It is a fact which is bringing big problems which must be solved. Its building permits last month showed it to be fourth in Southern California, the cities ahead of it being Los Angeles, Long Beach, and San Diego. Glendale is in the adolescent period. It is outgrowing its clothes faster than we can provide them. It is a critical period and upon the manner in which we meet it is going to be determined the future of the city. We need street improvements, we need sewers, we haven't anything like the schools we need.

"I sincerely hope that this parent-teacher association will get behind the high school proposition. Your children are not in high school now but they are going to be. The only trouble is we haven't enough money to build as good a high school as Glendale ought to hame.

"Your board of education finds itself facing this situation: The money voted for grade schools is only going to relieve the situation. Glendale is at a critical point in its growth. When we grow into a really big city are we going to walk around with our heads hanging and say, 'that was the best we could afford?' or are we going to be able to point with pride to the school system we have built-up? We have a tremendous responsibility because we are building for future generations. These are your problems and the question is how we are going to build the schools we

REMANDING OF RAIL WAGE CUT DEMANDED

CHICAGO, March 23.—Representatives of four large railway systems today argued against the motion of B. M. Jewell, chairman of the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor, that hearings before the United States railway labor board on wage reductions be remanded.

Jewell presented the motion on the grounds that separate conferences between employers and employes had not been held. Representatives of the roads, however, told the labor board that conferences were held.

A. H. Jones, assistant to the vice-president of the St. Louis and San Francisco road, declared Jewell's move was not reflected by the federal committee which met with the railway board.

SNIPERS' RIFLES BARK ON ULSTER LINE

Reports From Front in Ireland Civil War; Bulletts Zip

ON THE ULSTER FRONT, CALEDON, County Tyrone, March 23.—(United Press).— Snipers' rifles were barking defiance across the Tyrone border here today. Along the Monaghan frontier, Ulster volunteers and Irish republican troops are facing each other across a narrow no man's land. Farm houses are being fortified. Several entrenchments have been thrown up. Both sides are ready for threatened civil war.

The trouble along the Ulster border is the climax of series of raids into Ulster by Sinn Fein extremists. Ulster constabulary have been rushed to protect the Tyrone frontier and the Irish republican army troops, apparently striving to create trouble and upset the establishment of the free state, have been reinforced until the situation assumes the aspects of guerilla warfare.

The Blackwater river flows between the opposing forces near this little market town, which is held today by Ulster constabulary. Across the narrow river, the pinging of snipers' bullets come from the Sinn Fein side with the dawn. So far, Ulster troops have been under orders not to fire except when attacked.

The status of the southern troops was not clear, even today. They had been repudiated by the provisional government, yet reports from Sinn Fein encampments scattered through the little villages around Killilles and Glannon said that many of the Irish republican troops there were loyal to the free state.

A salient formed by Blackwater's bend on the eastern edge of the Tyrone-Monaghan border has been heavily fortified by the northern forces. Three bridges which were blown up early in the week have been completely destroyed, and the roads leading into Ulster from the fords have been entrenched to prevent flying automobile raids by Sinn Fein scouts.

Aughnacloy and Dyan, towns in the miniature war zone, resemble nothing so much as beleaguered villages in France from 1914 to 1918. It is dangerous to move from cover for sharpshooters are picking off persons on this side of the river with skill that bespeaks service in France.

Sinn Fein scouts are obviously equipped with powerful field glasses, "German glasses," the Ulster troopers charge. Ulster troop movements are constantly under observation.

BELFAST, March 23.—(United Press).—A bomb was hurled into an entrance of St. Matthews Catholic church during Lenten devotion last night. Two women who remained on their knees were terribly wounded by the explosion. Others of the congregation had hairbreadth escapes.

Two boys were killed in sporadic sniping throughout the city and other bombs were thrown.

NEW PROHIBITION AGENT

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes today named the heads of the 18 areas established as a basis for the operation and supervision of the general prohibition agents. The chiefs selected from the present personnel, include: W. W. Anderson, Los Angeles—California and Nevada.

MASTER PLUMBERS REGISTRATION IS MANDATORY

Regulation Adopted by Glendale Becomes Effective in 30 Days

The plumbing ordinance of the city of Glendale has been adopted by the city council and becomes effective within 30 days after its passage. This ordinance is to regulate the work of plumbers in the city and requires all master plumbers to register with the city clerk and have a temporary permit or certificate of competency issued, pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the state of California, approved April 6. 1917.

Under the new ordinance every plumber doing business as a firm or corporation will be required to pay a fee to the city clerk at the time of registering, amounting to $75. They will also be required to post a bond with two individuals or a surety company acting as bondsman. The amount of the bond required is $1000 and is to protect any person who suffers damage at the hands of the plumber through violation of the plumbing ordinance or ordinance No. 393, entitled "an ordinance of the city of Glendale regulating plumbing, gas fitting, cess pools and sewer work."

Firms laying sewers, cess pools or outside drains on private premises will be charged a fee of $15.

GLENDALE TAILOR TO DRESS POLICE

Acting on instructions from Chief of Police Fraser, Capt. William A. Loving, pistol instructor of the department, has made arrangements with A. Gelmor, to provide uniforms for the members of the department. Gelmore has agreed to supply the men with uniforms made to their measure at the same price they were paying for ready-made uniforms in Los Angeles.

At the time the announcement was made to the department that uniforms could be secured in Glendale, it was also announced that the force would change from the winter uniform of blue to summer olive drab on May 20.

Odd Jobs Awaiting Completion Require World's Attention

Stating that the world is a place of odd jobs and that happiness depends much on how the odd jobs are done, is the statement of James W. Foley in his "Listening Post" article tonight, in which he says that the world is full of odd jobs waiting to be done.

Henry James in his comment on the day's news, speaks of the failure of the jury to reach a verdict in the Obenchain case, saying that probably the feeling of the public is fairly indicated by the standing of the juries in this and the Burch case.

The posthumous publication of a letter written by the late Franklin K. Lane to former President Wilson, and Mr. Lane's references, are treated in an editorial tonight entitled "With Peculiar Force." There are other editorials on "Recognition of Mexico," "Justice to the Lizard," "Rebuking the Student" and "A Bearded Race." All of them will be found interesting, and John Pilgrim and Della Stewart furnish their usual features. The point of view of eastern editors, scientific facts, poetry and wise sayings go to complete a splendid editorial page this evening.

GLENDALE'S FIRST TRADE EXCURSION ORGANIZED

Secretary Rhoades of C. of C. Is Completing Final Details

Plans are being completed by Secretary James M. Rhoades of the Chamber of Commerce for Glendale's first trade excursion to the various towns of the San Fernando valley. Mr. Rhoades, while he has not made all of the final arrangements for the trip the major portion have been made and the date set for the excursion. The party will leave Glendale at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of April 19 and will return to Glendale at 6:30 p. m.

Every business man in Glendale will be asked to make this trip. It is planned to have at least 50 automobiles in the cavalcade and at least four people in each auto. Mr. Rhoades has already made arrangements for a receptions committee to meet the Glendale party in each town. The various chambers of commerce have assured Mr. Rhoades that they will cooperate with the Glendale organization in every way to make this first excursion a success.

The cavalcade will travel on schedule time with a certain limit on the time to be spent in each town. Lunch will be arranged for at the Porter hotel in San Fernando.

This trip is to be exactly what the name implies, a trade excursion. Advertising literature, business cards and advertising novelties will be distributed by the various Glendale merchants making the trip. The purpose of the trip will be to form stronger bonds between Glendale and the other cities of the valley. All of the autos in the cavalcade will be decorated and bear signs. One of the signs to be prominently displayed will be "Buy It at Home if You Can—If You Cannot Get it There Come to Glendale." Another card to be prominently displayed will bear the legend, "You Can Park Your Car in Glendale."

Any merchant who desires to make the trip will notify Mr. Rhoades at the Chamber of Commerce, decorate his car in any way he desires, load it with his family or friends and be ready to get in line at 8:30 on Wednesday morning April 19. Mr. Rhoades has already interviewed many of Glendale's merchants relative to making the trip and they have unanimously endorsed the plan and promised that they would be in the cavalcade when it leaves the Chamber of Commerce.

BURGLARS ATTACK R. E. SMITH HOME

Police Summoned Fail to Find Trace; Other Robberies

The theft of an automobile robe and an attempt to burglarize a house were reported to the local police department last night. Mr. Morrison of 501 West Doran street reported that an automobile robe was stolen from his machine while it was parked in front of his home.

R. E. Smith, 406 East Elk, reported to the police that a man had attempted to enter his house through the door of a screen porch at the rear. Captain McGuire and Patrolmen Nunn and Edwards answered the call but a search of the neighborhood failed to reveal any traces of the man.

OPERA DIVA TO DIVORCE CHAUFFEUR HUSBAND, "PERFECT MAN"

Mlle. Margarete Matzenauer, famed opera diva, will file divorce proceedings against Floyd Glotzbach, her chauffeur husband, who, when she married him, she claimed to be "the 100 per cent man." "I picked him out of the gutter and that where I leave him," she declares. "You can tell the world I'm through—all through with him." A woman of 50 will be named co-respondent, the singer said. Glotzbach has returned to San Francisco, where he and his wife formerly resided.

BANKER TALKS TO REALTY BOARD

Senator Roseberry Speaks on Relations of Bankers and Realtors

Forty members of the Glendale Realty Board attended the meeting of the board in the Chamber of Commerce headquarters yesterday noon. The session proved to be one of the most profitable ever held by the board.

Senator Rosberry, one of the prominent bankers of Southern California, gave a talk on "The Relation of the Banker to the Real Estate Agent." He explained how the banks were working to protect the buyers of real estate, the endeavor being to work hand in hand with the reputable real estate agents along this line.

Mr. Moore, ex-president of the Toledo, Ohio, realty board, said he was glad to be in Glendale and that he intended to do everything in his power to assist the realty board in its effort to put the real estate business of Glendale on a strong and substantial basis. At the meeting of the realty board next Wednesday evening Mr. Moore will explain the operation of the multiple listing system of real estate.

A short talk was also given by Gil Cowan on the relation of the press to the real estate business.

It was announced that the publicity committee of the board is working on a system whereby the value of the realty board to the community will be made known to the people of the city generally.

SANTA ANA MAN KILLED IN CRASH

LOS ANGELES, March 23.—Walter E. Guy of Santa Ana was instantly killed and Mrs. M. M. Deming of Long Beach was probably fatally injured today when Guy drove his coupe into the side of a fast moving electric freight train east of Long Beach.

Mrs. Deming was picked up apparently in a dying condition, and rushed to the Seaside hospital. She has a mother and two children living in East Long Beach. Guy is a dealer in automobile tires in Santa Ana.

THORNYCROFTERS CIRCUS GUESTS

Management to Give Soldiers Seats of Honor Under Big Top

Hurrah! The boys of Thornycroft hospital are off to the circus. They are going to take in all the sights, from the trained animals to the fat woman. And when they come home they will be telling the folks all about it.

A committee consisting of L. W. Hoge, William Bland and Jack Liptick, members of the sick committee of the disabled American Veterans, visited the management of the circus yesterday, and were told that if the disabled soldiers would present themselves at the entrance of the big tent they would be escorted with honors to the best seats in the house and every other courtesy would be shown them. This invitation includes the boys from Thornycroft, Barlow and Compton.

Transportation, which is being furnished by the Knights of Columbus, will leave Thornycroft hospital at 12:30 today and wil go direct to the circus grounds. It is expected that 25 boys and girls will go from Thornycroft, 15 from Barlow and 30 from Compton. Everything is set for a big time and the boys and girls feel that they are in for a big treat.

REVOLVER SHOTS ROUSE THE POLICE

Several reports were made to the police department last night that a volley of revolver shots had been fired on East Broadway just east of Glendale avenue last night about 9 o'clock. Dr. Kaemmerling made the first report of the shots and aPtrolman Lauritzen was detailed to investigate the matter. He searched the neighborhood but could find no one who had fired the shots. Other reports of the shooting were made to the department later. It is said by people who heard the shooting that about 15 shots were fired, sounding like reports from a small calibre revolver.

The Home Owning Complex

The family that starts on the journey toward home owning steps from one environment of thought to another, as it leaves the rent haunted class.

It is said life is a series of cycles, called complexes, for lack of better designation.

Those who are in one cycle or complex are shut out of another.

Entrance to a cycle of home owning is marked by intimate relations with social and economic forces unapproachable by those in the endless treadmill of rent paying.

There is the association with the army of folks pioneering toward the same stability.

There is the introduction to the credit side of life, the relation on a basis of character and endeavor with at least one financial institution.

There is the affiliation with the earnest people of a community in the upbuilding of the city.

And, coming gradually, is the illuminating knowledge that most of these people, who to the rent payer have always seemed to be possessed of abundance of ready cash, are really carefully mortgaged to the future on the basis of character and purpose. That precious thing, credit, is theirs, aiding and abetting their visions of upbuilding.

So, the novice in the home owning complex finds that the buying of a home, going into debt for it, brings compensations aside from home ownership in full credit for the virtue of honor and integrity that earned no dividends in the uneconomic days of rent paying. A virtue that is the corner stone of the new environment.

Spooks Rampage in Hermosillo Say Mexicans

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mex., March 23.—Three Mexican girls, ranging from 18 to 21 years of age, were brought here today on orders of Governor Francisco Elias for official and scientific examination of alleged occult forces said to be afflicting them.

They are Senoritas Paz Villareal, Refugia Madrid and Maria Villareal. All are on the verge of nervous prostration.

They arrived today from Bacerac, an isolated mountain town in the fastness of the Sierra Madres, on the Bavispe river.

The asserted manifestations began four weeks ago, in the middle of the night, when one of the trio was awakened by feeling a "cold hand" upon her face.

At the moment of her awakening, unseen hands are said to have pulled off all the bed coverings.

The girls fled the room, screaming.

Similar manifestations are said to have continued at all hours of the day and night.

While at the table, unseen hands are declared to have snatched from their grasp, dishes conveying food they were about to eat.

GARDNER HIGH SCHOOL SITE IS DISCUSSED

W. B. Kelley Presents Trustees With Details of Tract

Three members of the high school board of trustees were present at a special, supplementary meeting held Wednesday evening, Daniel Campbell, H. W. Yarick and Thos. D. Watson.

W. B. Kelley appeared before the board to present the advantages of the Gardner tract on Sixth street, overlooking the San Fernando valley, as a site for a high school at some future time, which it is desirable to secure now while it is available, it being the only tract of 20 acres now left on the west side of the city. The present price, as stated at the mass meeting Wednesday evening, is $80,000.

The board instructed Principal George U. Moyse and Trustee T. H. Watson to consult County Superintendent Mark Keppel in regard to the matter to ascertain whether the purchase would be possible or practical at this time.

The trustees decided to provide three separate polling places for the high school bond election, the same as at the last election.

A new teacher for the women's evening gymnasium class was elected to take up the work which Miss Brown was obliged to give up.

UNITED SPANISH WAR VETERANS ORGANIZE AND INSTALL OFFICERS

GOVERNMENT WILL PROTECT THE PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The government will protect the public against any violence that might follow a walkout of coal miners April 1, Attorney General Daugherty warned today.

"I am not taking sides in this matter, but I wish to make it clear that the public will be protected," he said.

Labor will drain its treasuries and fight to the last ditch to protect and provide relief for the 600,000 coal miners scheduled to walk out April 1, if that is found necessary, James Lord, head of the American Federation of Labor mining department, predicted.

Union labor considers the present coal situation one of the most important industrial battles in its history.

SHRINE CLUB IS JOYOUS GUEST AT PASADENA

Crown City Organization Takes Glendalians to Fatherly Bosom

Glendale's Shrine club is considerably swelled in importance by the notice it has received from its big sister, the Shrine club of Pasadena. The Glendale organization was the only one invited as a club to be represented at the splendid banquet and ball given Wednesday evening at Hotel Maryland, and the only one for which a special table was provided.

The Glendale guests included: President Clifford Neale, Mrs. Neale and little son, Jack Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dibbern, Mr. and Mrs. William Rattray, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Manley M. Johnson, Mrs. Menk, Miss Gladys Allewelt, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Waxman, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Gartly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hahn, Mr. Mason, Miss Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Watson, Mrs. Katherine Elkins and A. B. Van Deerlin.

The dinner was served at 7:30, guests forming in line for a grand march to the dining room, which was a scene of beauty with its floral decorations and table appointments. The large round table reserved for Glendale's club, decorated with palms, ferns and flowers, was one of the most attractive in the room.

The Pasadena club has a membership of 450 and of these at least 350 and their wives were present.

Max Fischer was present with his splendid orchestra, which played at intervals throughout the meal, the orchestral program being varied by fine vocal numbers.

It would be useless to describe the good things to eat. Guests trying to reduce complain today that they are several pounds heavier, but it was a joy while it lasted.

About 9 o'clock an adjournment was taken to the ballroom, which was a brilliant spectacle of color and motion, the feminine element presenting a wonderful array of beautiful gowns and the gentlemen in evening dress.

A dance program suitable to the occasion was enjoyed to the limit, the party lasting until midnight.

Those who participated from here say that Shriners who failed to go missed a treat that will not come their way again very soon.

As a proof of the perfect arrangements made for the convenience and comfort of guests, a room and attendant were provided for little Jack Clifford Neale, that his parents might enjoy to the full without anxiety the dinner and dance.

RALPH COLE MAKES ARRANGEMENT FOR CHRISTIAN CALL

State Boys' Secretary of Y in Glendale for High Students

Ralph E. Cole, state boys' secretary of the Y. M. C. A., under whose auspices the coming Christian Calling conference will be held, was in Glendale for a few minutes yesterday, making final arrangements for this gathering of high school boys.

A great deal of interest is being shown all over this part of the state for this coming conference, which is to be held here Saturday and Sunday, with the first session starting at 6 o'clock Saturday evening at the First Methodist church, which will be the headquarters of the conference.

Registrations received to date for delegates are: Long Beach, 10; Pomona, 4; Los Angeles, 12; San Diego, 8; Redlands, 5; Imperial county, 3; San Bernardino, 4.

As usual, when the Glendale people were asked to do their part toward entertaining these delegates for the night, they responded with more homes than were asked for.

MILITIAMEN BEAT LONG BEACH TEAM

Score of 39 to 30 Hung Up by Local National Guardsmen

The basketball team of company M, national guards, stationed at Glendale, last night defeated the national guard team from Long Beach by a score of 39 to 30. While the score was a high one the game was one of the best that the locals have played recently. The narrow margin by which the local five won the game was due to the fact that several members of the team are out of the city. Both of the guards, Wilde and Dennison, were out of town and substitutes took their places. Long Beach played a good brand of basketball but the Glendale boys played better—that is the whole story.

OWN-A-HOME and Build-Now-Week

There are two kinds of "home nests"—

One is the kind that is "all yours." This is the home in which you take a real interest, in connection with which you delight to plan new features, to lay out and put into effect little garden plans, and many other charming attractions that tend to make it a real home. This is the little cottage of which you think during the day while at your work. In your mind you picture the little wife flitting to and fro about the house, working in the garden or caring for the hundred and one little things that demand attention. You plan some little improvement you will make when your day's work at the office is finished and the hours pass too slowly until you get the hoe or the rake in your hands. It is the little home that you cherish, of which you dream, and for which you are constantly planning. In other words, it is a place that is a home in the truest sense of the word and which belongs to you and the little wife.

The other "home nest" is one that is owned by the landlord, and it is a place in which only the landlord is interested. You are interested in that dwelling only because it comprises a roof that will shield you and your loved ones from the rain, and a series of walls to retain the heat that comes from the little gas stove. It is a place where you eat and sleep—and that is all. Your deeper interests are not there. The heartstrings are not "pulled" when you leave in the morning, and there is no genuine feeling of repose, restfulness and independence—these are lacking in the rented home. The renter is always at the command of the landlord. At his command you move, with his agreement you stay. You live an artificial life.

Why not get out of the "rut"—the rent paying ridge in which you have been running for the past years and months. It costs no more, so why continue to pay the surplus to the landlord?

WAR MOTHERS HOLD MEETING

The Lester Meyer chapter of United War Mothers met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ella Richardson, 317 North Brand boulevard with about 20 members present.

The new charter of the chapter has just been framed and the members wish to thank Mr. Wells for donating his services in framing it for them. About 20 blanks were filled out, two by each mother, one of which will be sent for record at Washington, D. C., and the other to be kept by the mother. These blanks give the soldier's record from the time he entered the service until after the war, and will prove interesting as well as helpful to the government in years to come.

Mrs. Dockery donated her services as a notary for these blanks as they were signed, and the chapter also wishes to thank her. Service has just been secured for two unemployed ex-service men through the chapter. After an interesting afternoon, cooling refreshments were served by the hostess.

READING CIRCLE MEETS AT LIBRARY

About 35 members were present at the meeting of the Reading Circle Wednesday at the city library.

Mrs. H. V. Henry gave the review of the day, an article on "Illiteracy." She also read a most interesting article on vitamines and asked the ladies to take down the list of foods enumerated as rich in these elements, which they did under the following classifications:

(a) Soluble vitamines — carrots, cream, butter, codliver oil, yolk of egg, and yellow vegetables. These promote growth of bodily tissue and maintain heat.

(b) Water soluble vitamines—cereals and green vegetables, especially the water in which they are cooked. These are especially abundant in yeast.

(c) Also soluble in water, uncooked foods and fruits such as citrus fruits, raw cabbage and raw green vegetables. These vitamines are declared to cure scurvy and malnutrition.

Vitamines are said to be most abundant in milk.

The review next week will be an article on Americanization entitled "It Is Up to Us."

The circle finished the reading of the book on "Moral Education" and the one it will take up next week will be "Mother Love in Action."

White Proposes New System

ought to have in the places they ought to be?

"A long time ago the National Education Association appointed a committee to investigate and report on the proper organization of a school system. That committee reported and our schools have been bringing themselves into the form recommended. In other words a general system of development has been adopted and is going on everywhere. That plan of organization is known as the 'six, three and three' plan, i. e., six years in the elementary, three years in junior high, and three years in senior high. Almost all the cities around us have organized on that basis or are doing it as rapidly as possible. Los Angeles has been so organized for some time.

"What is it. You are now sitting in an abbreviated junior high school, a junior high with the top cut off. It is being maintained by the elementary school board. The law says a junior high school belongs to the high school board. We are giving you the best approach to a junior high school that we can legally give you.

As an elementary school board our board wants to know whether you people want to continue the schools exactly as they are. If so, well and good. But what is the alternative? It could be done by a central school system, to unite your high school and elementary school system, as has been done in Los Angeles.

"Under the California law elementary and high school districts are two separate organizations. But in Los Angeles the same trustees are elected for both boards and simply adjourn as one board to transact the business of the other board.

"In Glendale we have two boards and one difficulty that has been mentioned is that the high school district is the larger and takes in Eagle Rock. It would seem that the simplest way to handle that problem would be to induce Eagle Rock to become annexed to Glendale for school purposes only. There would be two cities but one school district.

"Another solution would be the one that Venice has adopted. Her high school board has taken over the seventh and eighth grades. They have two boards. The elementary board handles the schools from kindergarten to sixth grade. The high school board handles the 7th, 8th, and 9th grades in a junior high, the 10th, 11th and 12th in a senior high.

"This brings you face to face with the question: 'What are you going to do with the present high school plant over here?' Two solutions have been suggested. One that it continue to be used for school purposes, the other that it be used as a civic center, city library, and recreational center. Several members of the city council who discussed the matter informally seemed to think the civic center idea was not practicable because the buildings would require so much making over.

"If that plant is retained by the high school board or taken over by the elementary board, it is going to continue to be used for school purposes but is not adequate to meet junior high needs. It would overflow at the start. But we have another school building at Park avenue and Glendale which is being constructed with a view to its ultimate use as a junior high and the two plants would meet the emergency.

"But what becomes of this school? The moment you take away the 7th and 8th grades, this becomes a grammar school for kindergarten and the first six grades, for which we have 15 rooms available.

"What then becomes of the Colorado school? I believe it will disappear. I do not think it will be necessary any longer. If we have a big grammar school here and a big one at Acacia avenue it will not be needed. As it has an old, frame building, perhaps it is just as well. We can remove the buildings and give it to the junior high school for an athletic field, which it will badly need, or, if not used in that way, it will be valuable property to sell.

"What would become of the Doran street school? We would not need to improve it right away, we could wait a while. These are questions for the citizens of Glendale and I think the city as a whole is going to have to work out its own salvation.

"As to what is being done now, the chamber of commerce has appointed a survey committee, a subcommittee of 19 has requested members of the high school board and the elementary school board to meet with it and thresh out these questions, and I hope the federation of the P.-T. A. will also appoint a committee.

"I feel that you would have a right to blame me if I did not bring these facts to your attention. I do not offer a solution. I think the solution must come through co-operation and that we should appoint as many committees as may be necessary so that when we get through we may know that in our future development we have selected the best and are going to build up a permanent school system that will compare favorably with the system of any other city in California or the world.

"I want you to feel that in laying these things before you I am not advocating anything except co-operation and investigation to decide what is best. As we decide now the future is going to hold for us a modern, up-to-date system or a make-shift we will be more or less ashamed of."

At the meeting about 50 members were present. A big jar of peach bloom beautified the corner of the library in which the meeting was held and the program proved of unusual interest.

Following the salute to the flag, led by Miss Edith Tyler, patriotic chairman, 15 members of the girls' glee club, led by Miss Gladys Sharpe sang the part song "Thine Eyes so Blue and Tender," and "The Lord is My Shepherd," in a manner which made the motners feel pleased and proud.

Dr. Jessie Russell indorsed Mr. White's talk and his plea for support of the high school bond issue, briefly reviewing the work of the mass meeting over which she presided and dwelling on the fact that all factions were there represented and yet the vote to instruct the high school trustees to call the election was unanimous. It marked, she said, an advance from petty personal considerations to a broader vision which promised well for the future of Glendale.

Her main talk concerned the organized amusement program to be put on by the Community Service, a national organization supported in part by the Rockefeller Foundation. This program has been indorsed by the chamber of commerce and the organization invited to put it on for three months in Glendale with the understanding that the community will then carry it on for a year under a trained and paid executive.

Dr. Russell declared the danger period for the adolescent boy and girl when he resists nursery authority is in the hours between the close of school and bedtime. He feels the stirrings of the "gang" spirit. He wants companionship and want it in bunches. Under this program the doctor argued it would be possible to keep the boys and girls happily occupied under safe supervision and she feels it is the great need in Glendale right now. She therefore asked the support of the program when it is inaugurated the early part of April.

The low state of the association treasury was reported and a prospective entertainment, bazaar or food sale was announced.

Announcement was made of the meeting of the District Federation, April 4, when Glendale will be hostess and at which the national president will be entertained.

Reports from the membership committee indicated an enrollment of 272 which it is hoped can be increased to 300 before the district meeting.

CHINA ENTERS THIRD EPOCH

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—China is now entering her third historical epoch since the opened her gates to Western civilization, according to a statement made by William Hung, professor of history at the University of Pekin during a visit here. This epoch promises to bring about the real awakening of China, and above all, to bring closer relationship with the United States, Hung believes.

"Three policies have held China's destinies," stated Hung. "First, the policy of 'all hands on'—every European nation seeking territory to maintain the so-called balance of power.

"Next came the policy of 'one hand on'—that of Japan. And now, following the great conference at Washington, comes the policy that spells an equally bright future for China, and all nations of the world that deal with her—a policy of 'all hands off.'

"With the nations believing in peace and progress as against war and retrogression, perhaps China will be allowed to take her lawful place in the family of nations, and contribute her best of civilization.

"All intelligent men and women know that the drama of future civilization will be staged in the blue waters of the Pacific. It should be a drama of peace.

"We believe in peace because minds are stronger than muscles, and ideals are more powerful than physical force.

"It is time for the world to realize that China's gate is open to all who come in a spirit of helpfulness and sympathy. It is time for all nations to think in terms of friendly commerce, and not grabbing hands. There is plenty of room in China for her people, and plenty of room for commerce and business with foreign nations, so long as such relations are guided by friendship, sympathy, cooperation and unederstanding."

THE STAGE-DOOR JENNY

CLEVELAND, March 23.—Exit—the stage-door "Johnny." The species is gone, along with the "sea-going hack," the "after-the-show" wine party amid the "Great White Lights," and the swinging door. Enter—the stage-door "Jenny." Our men stars are deluged with mash notes from flappers—flappers of all ages," declared F. M. Lovewell, who has been guarding a theatre entrance here since 1888.

COLORADO PICNIC

President L. E. Garberg of the Colorado contingent is calling on all former residents of his state to rally for the big picnic reunion in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles, all day Saturday, March 25. He has arranged all the usual picnic features and wants 5000 from the old home state to enjoy them. Spend the day with old friends.

Every man knows how other men ought to do things.

Tight, one of the most active real estate brokers in Glendale, is again situated in her former location at 612 East Broadway, having leased the entire store room, which is 25 by 75 feet in size. Since taking over this room Mrs. Tight has had it divided into offices, the whole being one of the most attractive office rooms in Glendale.

The front office section is 25 by 25 feet in size. The east side of this space is taken up by Mrs. Tight, while the western part is occupied by Spencer Robinson, real estate and insurance, Mrs. Mary Myton being in charge of this section. Immediately behind the front office is Mrs. Tight's private office, which is 10 by 18 feet in size. At the side of this is the office of the Low Building company, one of the most active building organizations in Glendale. The size of this room is 14 by 18 feet, and is admirably suited to the work of this company. At the rear of this office is the drafting room of the Low Building company, which is a spacious room equipped with everything along the drafting line.

The offices are equipped throughout with a wainscoting of gray and orange, above which the walls and ceiling are done in cream.

"PENROD" LAST TIME AT T. D. & L.

In "Freckles" Barry the screen has found the ideal impersonation of "Penrod," the boy character immortalized in Booth Tarkington's stories. The opinion comes, not from Marshall Neilan, who has made the film version of "Penrod," that will be shown at the T. D. & L. theatre for the last times today, but from Booth Tarkington himself. The Indiana author was largely responsible for the selection of "Freckles" Barry for the title role.

HOUSE TAKES UP SOLDIERS' BILL

Gag Rule Enables Backers to Put It Through Without Amendment

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The four billion dollar bonus bill was taken up for passage by the house today. The special gag rule enabling its backers to put it through without alteration was called up in the house shortly after it convened at 11 o'clock and the semblance of a fight was started.

The house overwhelmingly adopted the rule permitting the bonus bill to come up immediately under "suspension of the rules."

The treasury faces a shortage this year of approximately $200,000,000 because income tax payments of March 15 have fallen considerably below previous estimates, it was stated officially at the department today, as the house prepared to increase the fiscal burden by passing the soldiers' bonus bill.

M'ADOO UNABLE TO SPEAK HERE

Returning from Pasadena this morning E. F. Sanders, assistant secretary of the chamber of commerce announced that it was impossible to secure William Gibbs McAdoo as principal speaker at the Forum meeting of the chamber of commerce for April as a previous engagement in New York conflicts with the date. He brings word from Mr. McAdoo, however, that on his return he will be glad to address the members of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. McAdoo told Mr. Sanders that he would give his word to address the chamber of commerce on his return from the east as he feels that he knows Glendale well. He said that he had passed through the city several times and was very favorably impressed with it. He sent his regards to Mattison B. Jones, who is an old friend of Mr. McAdoo's.

"Glendale," said Mr. McAdoo, "is one of the most progressive small cities that I have ever heard of and I knew Glendale and its wonderful progress even before I decided to make my home in California."

Alma Geiger With Trio

SCENE FROM "HIAWATHA — PROGRAM OF CADMAN TRIO

Glendale music lovers are again reminded of the entertainment which is being given Friday night at the chamber of commerce auditorium by the Cadman trio, as a benefit for the Business and Professional Women's club, and as the club's contribution to music week.

Miss Alma Geiger, who is the pianiste of the trio, is a Glendalian, a member of the Business Women's club, the Tuesday Afternoon club and the Glendale Music club. She is identifying herself with Glendale in the spirit of a good citizen and should receive the evidences of appreciation that are her due.

The club which is giving the concert is also entitled to generous support.

The entertainment is a beautiful interpretation of Longfellow's "Hiawatha," with a beautiful, real Indian stage setting, a fine accompaniment of piano music composed by Sadie Knoylan Coe, and songs from Cadman's Indian suite, by the vne soprano, Constance Balfour.

It is the kind of musical entertainment that children can enjoy and there should be a good representation of the kiddies, who will be admitted on 25-cent tickets. Single admissions for adults are 75 cents.

IMPROVEMENT OF COLORADO ORDER AT EAGLE ROCK

City Trustees Decide to Proceed With Boulevard Work

The city trustees at their meeting Monday night decided to proceed with the improvement of the south side of Colorado boulevard between Central and Townsend avenues, which has long been in a bad state due to much heavy teaming over it. Central avenue will also be repaired, and Valley drive, which is a natural waterway and has never been paved, will be put in first class condition. This will be welcome news to residents of the cross streets west of Valley drive, who, at times during copious rains, have been almost marooned.

SLOGAN SOUGHT FOR EAGLE ROCK

Contest Does Not Close Until Saturday Night

The slogan contest has been continued one week, hence does not close until Saturday night, March 25. Many letters have been received by the publicity committee, but more will be welcomed. None have been opened. The committee hopes soon to order the big electric signs for the entrances to the city, but more subscriptions are needed and it is hoped that the requisite amount will soon be in hand.

NEW CIVIC CLUB FOR EAST SIDE OF EAGLE ROCK

First Meeting Called for Monday Night at School House

Residents of the eastern section of Eagle Rock have arranged for a meeting next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the east end schoolhouse, to arrange for the organization of a civic club, the purpose of which will be to consider matters of community interest and use every endeavor to promote the welfare of that part of the town. Many property owners have signed the petition for such an association. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance at the initial meeting. G. Gordon Whitnall, secretary of the regional planing conference of Los Angeles county, will speak, and after his address the meeting will be open for discussion of the objects and scope of the proposed organization.

DIRT FLIES AS EAGLE ROCK GROWS

Steam Shovel Starts on New Foundation Near Library Building

Dirt is certainly moving at a lively rate in Eagle Rock these days. No sooner was the 100-foot frontage on East Colorado boulevard, next Mueller's grocery and market, cleared to street level than the big steam shovel was transferred to the corner adjoining the public library, where it is now rapidly scooping away the high bank. On the corner of Fairmont avenue and the boulevard, ground has been broken for the city hall, to be erected under the supervision of the Los Angeles architect, Wm. Lee Woollett; and Tuesday, the grading of North Townsend avenue through the beautiful Dahlia Heights tract, which Ruddick & Driver and H. E. Barnum are handling, was begun. There are six carts taking away the dirt scraped up by the grading machine. Ready use is found for this and the dirt removed from downtown lots, to fill in and level depressions in the choice residential sections north of the boulevard.

MRS. JOS. W. WILLIAMSON

Mrs. Joseph W. Williamson passed away on March 15 at 326 West Adams avenue, aged 44 years. Funeral services and interment were at Forest Lawn, in Glendale. She was a newcomer to Eagle Rock.

MRS. OSCAR DAVIS

On Thursday of last week occurred the death of Mrs. Oscar Davis, who had resided for 24 years at 836 East Park avenue. She was 77 years of age, and affiliated with the Methodist church of Eagle Rock. The funeral and interment took place at Inglewood.

CHICAGO'S FIGHT FOR CHEAP FARE NEARS END

Mayor Thompson Declare Solution Is Municipal Ownership

(Copyright, 1922, by United Press)

CHICAGO, March 23.—William Hale Thompson, who has directed Chicago's fight for a 5-cent carfare, today outlined his campaign to drive privately owned traction systems from the streets of Chicago.

The mayor consented to give his views in an exclusive interview with the United Press—the first interview he has granted in several years—only when it was pointed out that many other cities faced traction problems similar to that in Chicago, and experiences gained here might be helpful to other municipalities.

"In dealings of the street car companies with the city, the case has always been 'heads the companies win, tails the city loses,'" the mayor declared.

"The only solution of the street railway problem in Chicago is the owner-ship of the railways by the people and their operation by trustees elected by the people for that purpose," continued the mayor.

"The United States supreme court had pointed out that experience demonstrates that the aim of private ownership is to get the largest amount of pay for the smallest amount of service; while the proper aim of public ownership is to give the largest amount of service for the smallest amount of pay.

"There is no doubt that public ownership is more desirable than private ownership, especially in a city like Chicago, where good local transportation at a low cost is so vital to the comfort and convenience of our people who work for a living."

Going into the history of the Chicago fight for lower fares, the mayor said:

"In 1907 the street railway companies made contracts with the city of Chicago, and through a referendum, directly with the people. By these contracts the companies agreed to furnish first class service for 5 cent fares until February, 1927.

"The companies have never furnished first class service. Their service has been abominable. Their contracts, during the first 12 years, were very profitable. They made net profits of more than $100,000,000.

"When on account of the war some lean years threatened, the companies obtained from the public utilities commission an increase in rates from 5 to 8 cents, which put an additional burden on the car riders of $60,000 a day, or $21,000,000 a year. The courts have held that the public utilities commission represented the state and that the contracts of the city could be abrogated by the commission.

The mayor, as a solution to the problem, declared he was "for an independent transportation district to acquire and operate the street railway properties, directly under the management of officials elected by the people for that purpose."

"Only in this way can the people have anything to say about what kind of service they shall have at what price," he concluded.

"Later the Illinois Commerce Commission, appointed by Gov. Small, which had fully as much authority as the Public Utilities commission, ordered the 5-cent fare restored. A United States court enjoined this order of the commerce commission, which held out a measure of relief for car patrons, and thereby continued the 8-cent fare."

The mayor declared that the Chicago people had approved the settlement contracts made in 1907 "because they believed those contracts provided for public ownership at their maturity, but they found they were deceived, because the provisions, supposed to guarantee public ownership were in reality to prevent the public from ever acquiring the lines.

"To strengthen the hold of the companies upon the streets," the mayor explained, "a joker was introduced into the contracts providing that while the rights of the companies to the streets would expire February 1, 1927, the city could not authorize any other company to operate in the streets, except upon condition that the company would pay the present companies the purchase price of the contracts.

"A representative of the companies testified that there is $85,000,000 to $90,000,000 in this padded purchase price that is not represented in any property at all. Hence it is obvious that neither the city nor any other company could ever acquire the lines under the contracts."

Tragedies of the Spring on the Beach

Among the most tragic drownings of the entire year are those occurring in the spring when swimmers essaying their first dip so often succumb to cramps because of the unsuspected iciness of the water and their own inadequate resistance to cold due to months of heavy clothing and physical inactivity. The season of tragedies from this cause approaches. On the editorial page of this issue is an article dealing with the situation and pointing out preventives. It is urged that all who read these lines do all in their power to send this information broadcast to the end that this spring the toll of death from this preventable cause may be diminished.

Mail Want Ad

Write your advertisement in the blank spaces below, just as you want it to appear in the Want Ad columns. Tell your story completely and convincingly if you want to accomplish quick results. Three days' insertion produces more replies than one; a week's insertion is best of all.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES

First Insertion—Minimum charge 30 cents, including four lines, counting five words to the line. Additional lines 5 cents per line.

Subsequent Consecutive Insertions—5 cents per line.

Minimum charge for each subsequent insertion, 15 cents.

Do you want a "blind" or keyed address used? Amount enclosed .....

Glendale Daily Press Want Ads are accepted by telephone or may be brought to our office. This blank is for the benefit of the person who finds it more convenient to fill his "Want" by mail.

How to Figure Your Want Ad

Count five average words to each line. The address at the foot of your Want Ad is counted also. Each number, initial, etc., counts as one word. For example, the name, "John C. Smith," is three words; "212 W. Main Street" is four words; "160 acres, 3 miles from railroad, $300 per acre," is nine words, etc. In case you want a keyed or "blind" address used instead, indicate so above. The "blind" address comprises five words and will be counted as part of your advertisement.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

L. W. HAVENS

L. W. Havens, son-in-law of J. M. Lovell, 505 North Maryland, passed away at his home, 150 North Harvard street, Los Angeles, Monday, March 20, after an illness extending over two weeks.

Three attacks of influenza during the past two years brought on heart trouble, which was the immediate cause of his death. Mr. Havens was taken sick two weeks ago with the flu and a few days later pneumonia developed. Physicians succeeded in breaking the pneumonia but the heart was not strong enough to withstand the onslaught and death resulted.

Funeral services were held in Los Angeles Wednesday and the remains were taken to Santa Paula this morning for interment. Mr. Havens was a kind-hearted man, and was well liked. eH leaves a wife, a brother and sister. Mrs. J. M. Lovell, Mrs. W. L. Taylor, Misses Grace and Bernice Coffey, Lovell Taylor and Mrs. L. W. Havens accompanied the remains to Santa Paula.

ANDREW BAKER

He is survived by a wife and several children, whose names could not be secured at this writing.

Funeral arrangements will be made and announced later.

JOSEPH STERN HENDERSON

Joseph Stern Henderson, a native of Glasgow, Mo., passed away at the age of 43 years, March 21, at a local hospital. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the parlors of Pulliam & Kiefer, and the remains will be shipped this evening to Elko, Nevada.

GLEN INN PUTS ON MUSIC MEMORY RECORDS

In conection with the music memory contest of which this is the last week, it is interesting to know that selections from the list of forty compositions featuring the contest are being played nightly for the edification of guests at the Glen Inn Cafe, and also at the music stores of the city where afternoon and evening concerts are being given. The Loomis-Shuck company is playing the selections in Ampico concerts every afternoon.

In the final contest concert that will be given from 10 to 12 Saturday morning at the T. D. & L. theatre, professionals will be barred. While at least one thousand school children are expected to compete there will also be prizes for adults. The spelling and capitalization of names will be considered in awarding prizes. All contestants are requested to be in their seats by 9:30 and the general public is invited to come and enjoy the concert, even though it is not competing for prizes.

All who have in any way promoted the music memory contest will be given seats or honor on the platform.

The organist, Wesley Kuhnle, will play the organ numbers.

In this connection it is of interest to know that Mr. Olson, the organist at the T. D. & L. has been giving theatre audiences a chance to get acquainted with the music memory list by playing selections this week.

FOUR PACT OR TEN BILLION NAVAL PROGRAM SURE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Palo Alto, Calif., March 23.—(United Press)—"Unless the treaty is ratified the naval program in a year will run up another ten billion dollars," declared Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in endorsing a public mass meeting in favor or ratification of the Washington treaties, held in San Francisco.

"If the senate passes the treaty the nation can reduce its naval bill $300,000,000 per year."

Tomorrow he will speak at a dinner given by the San Francisco chamber of commerce and then return to Washington via Salt Lake City and Denver.

FURTHER NAVAL REDUCTION, PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Secretary Denby and other high naval authorities have threatened to cut the navy to twelve battleships, six less than the number allowed the United States under the 5-5-3 ratio of the arms conference, in case congress passes the bill reducing the navy enlisted personnel to 65,000 men, it was learned today.

CALIFORNIA BOOMED BY D. C. STEVENS

"I am surely an enthusiastic booster for the 'Own Your Own Home' week, that was designated by the governor of California and endorsed by the Glendale chamber of commerce," said D. C. Stevens, contractor and builder, of 219½ East Broadway. "I believe it will be a great stimulus to business along all lines, from the real estate man to the butcher and the baker. But the greatest amount of good will be experienced to the fellow who decides through the 'Own Your Own Home' campaign to be his own landlord. Most of the money paid out for rent is practically thrown away. Of course, it costs something to keep up a home, but it costs far more to rent.

"Then, too, the fellow who owns the place in which he lives has a feeling that he is here to stay and that tomorrow he will not be asked to pick up and go, which is very often the case with the renter. He is always on the move.

"I believe the conscientious builder is an asset to the community. He is here to see that the homes in Glendale are put up in a workmanlike manner and he is not satisfied until the man for whom he is erecting the dwelling stamps his 'o. k.' on the job. Any other kind of a contractor and builder is not needed, either in Glendale or any other place."

Truths in Epigram

On the approach of spring I withdraw without reluctance from the noisy and extensive scene of crowds without company, and dissipation without pleasure.—Gibbon (1737-1794).

Fireside happiness, to hours of ease; Blest with that charm, the certainity to please.—Rogers (1763-1855).

WITH PECULIAR FORCE

Somehow a message read after the writer of it has passed on to another life, touches the senses with peculiar force. Posthumous publication of a letter written by the late Franklin K. Lane brings this fact to mind.

Mr. Lane was in public life for many years. He was a member of the interstate commission, and later, secretary of the interior. Prior to taking the first station he had won distinction as a lawyer, and a politician with the instincts of a statesman. In every relation in life his course was honorable. He was one of the most widely known and highly esteemed men connected with the Wilson administration. After long, faithful service, he resigned in order to earn an income somewhat commensurate with his ability. Soon after retirement the news of his death caused genuine sorrow to the people of the country.

After the nomination of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Lane wrote the candidate a letter. This has just been made public. It is impressive for more than one reason. He was describing a man who even then for years had assumed to be a dictator, and to destroy all who resented his course. He was telling Mr. Wilson of the utter moral worthlessness of the individual treated, but he did it without vituperation. There was nothing in the letter that could be construed as abusive, as a seeking for vengeance upon the person who had wronged him. He told the truth as he saw it, as experience had driven the certainty of it home to his understanding; but nowhere was there sign of malice, of hatred. It was the mere warning of friend to friend concerning a danger that one had encountered and that might await the other.

Readers of the letter could not help but wonder what the subject of it thought about it, and what he would do if, anything. It would be futile for him to assail a dead man who had left a spotless record. It would be useless for him to deny the allegations of the letter. Perhaps in the seclusion of his office, he will squirm.

JUSTICE TO THE LIZARD

Hotels are annoyed by an animal known as the lounge lizard. Now comes a divorce judge to aver that his place is haunted by divorce court lizards.

Why pick on the harmless lizard? No creature is more innocent and inoffensive. It does not interfere with anybody, but attends to its own business. The most startling thing it does is to part from its tail occasionally, the member snapping off if treated violently. But the lizard is cleanly, unobtrusive, and really shrinking, quite unlike the nuisance of the lobby and the tribunal of justice.

Managers of hotels are not confronted by any problem in relation to the pests. All they have to do is to order the hired help to throw the loafers into the street, and this is done wtih a zest indicative of actual pleasure. A court, however, is a public institution. Anybody who can get in has a right to be there. The result is that if a case promises to be salacious, or marked by such details as appeal to the morbid, the seats are likely to be full, and a crowd of the disappointed grumbling outside because they can't crowd past the guard.

What to do with this particular brand of idlers is a serious question. Perhaps they are doing as little harm in the unpleasant atmosphere of their desire as they would do elsewhere, if driven out. But they never will be cured by being called lizards. In quest of accuracy in description, better to call them coyotes or hyenas.

A BEARDED RACE

There is a unique contest going on in Sacramento. Scores of men have taken their last shave for a long period of days. These shaves were at a stipulated time. Thereafter they were to shave no more until the end of the specified term. Then prizes will be awarded for the most artistic, becoming or luxuriant growths. While the whiskers of the numerous jowls are striving to excel, doubtless the wearers will be the targets of many a quip. Nevertheless, the experiments will be interesting, and the results may alter the present style of the bald and obvious chin.

If a man finds that he is improved by the presence of a kindly fringe, that it hides his weak mouth, diminishes the apparent extent of his chin, covers the wrinkles, moles and other deviations from pulchritude, he may end up by throwing his razor away. Should the contest develop a group of bewhiskered beauties, Sacramento breezes may have the privilege hereafter of soughing through veritable thickets adorning the human map.

Men are as imitative as a flock of monkeys. In the civil war most soldiers neglected to shave, and so did the officers. As a consequence the young manhood of the seventies was as ostentatiously bearded as possible. The first fuzz to appear on the masculine countenance was welcomed, encouraged and petted into form. Later came reaction, due largely to the astute advertising of gentlemen with razors to sell. Away went the American whisker, to be swept out by the barber's porter, and it never has come back, very much. A few men of courage and dignity have resisted the onslaught of the razor, the while others, scraped and shiny as a ham, have laughed at them. But the beard is having its day, having several days in fact. Sacramento is to be congratulated on the novelty of its struggle for hirsute supremacy.

REBUKING THE STUDENT

Prof. Sihler of New York university is severe in his condemnation of a certain class of students. He says that they attend for the purpose of four years of ease and enjoyment, that real study is no part of life for them, but that, due to the present system of "honey courses" the student wastes his time and his father's money. He advocates "a good spanking and a pair of stout shoes" as better for the "college boob" than a racing car or silk shirts.

So far as the excoriation fits the case of the individual student, he will not get much sympathy. There are students of the type described by the professor. They get through without becoming educated, using every trick and device of evasion formulated by many generations of their kind. Yet the professor is too sweeping.

Many students are in the class room for the sake of the knowledge to be acquired there. They are faithful and earnest. Some of them pay their own way by hard labor. Others use parental funds, sparingly, and with every intention of repayment, if not in money, then in achievement. When college education is so fine a thing, so useful as part of the assets of the young, it is pity that a man whose business is to instruct, should see so little promise among his students. Possibly the fault does not belong wholly to the students. Some professors erudite, and distinguished in their specialties, are utter failures as teachers.

RECOGNITION OF MEXICO

Washington dispatches state that the early recognition of Mexico is probable. The delay is ascribed to the desire of President Harding to procure in advance certain pledges as to the conduct of Mexico in regard to American rights below the Rio Grande. With the utmost respect for President Harding, and for the dignity of this government, the opinion is ventured that the standing of Mexico is thus being questioned in a manner naturally offensive to a self-respecting people. It does not seem, Mexico by its conduct and purpose, being entitled to recognition, that Obregon should be called upon to pay a stated price for that which his administration merits.

If Mexico had not by its attitude towards its own people and its neighbors, demonstrated its sincerity, its stability and its worth, its expression of desire for recognition would be premature. If its attitude is such as indicated, Mexico is fully justifiable in seeking recognition. It is not called upon to abase itself in any degree. To deal with it as a republic after recognition would be a task not too strenuous for the United States.

Mexico is advancing rapidly. The declination of this country to extend a courtesy that by all precedent, seems due, may be humiliating to Obregon, but it is not checking the progress of the government he heads. It is, however, likely to give rise to resentment that will do nothing to promote the relations of the two countries, which, in the interests of both, should be intimate and cordial.

After having been in the Oklahoma penitentiary for eighteen years under sentence of death, a prisoner has just been set free. Apparently the course of justice is impeded by forgetfulness of its agencies. Nobody happened to think to carry the sentence into execution.

CYNICISM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

For some curious reason we aspire to cynicism.

The most prominent writers of the day are those who take the sophisticated pose.

DR. FRANK CRANE

While innocence, wonder, the child heart and the sense of newness and surprise in life are a human being's greatest treasure, for some strange reason we love to read of those who have exhausted all this, or at least who pretend they have, and who disport themselves upon the printed page as vicious children trampling the flowers in the garden.

One of the best sellers in the United States is "Main Street," a story which reveals the life of the common people as infinite dulness and drabness and is hailed with heehaws by all those who consider themselves emancipated.

The last Goncourt prize was won by a negro who wrote a book about African life and made it as salt and barren as the Sahara.

The Nobel prize is given to writers like Knut Hamsun and Anatole France, who, whatever their art may be, have said no word to inspire and reveal no truth to ennoble the life of man upon this troubled ball.

Bernard Shaw is in the forefront of English authors, and his imitators, Mencken and Nathan, enjoy quite a vogue in America, yet all we get from them are Mephistophelian quips and grimaces at whatever earnest striving there is among men.

The great mass of human beings are engaged in the business of living, striving in some way to save something beautiful from the wreck of years, yet they who should be minstrels for our encouragement sing to us songs and tell us tales that are, to use the words of Samuel Butler, but a "nightmare of waste and death as baseless as it is repulsive." Where in these days is the robustious vigor of a Victor Hugo, the broad humanities of Goethe, the fierce yet honest earnestness of Carlisle, the sane optimism of Emerson, the courage and beauty of Ruskin?

There is in us as says the author of "The Glass of Fashion," "The cancer of cynicism (that arrest of the moral tissues, that check in spiritual development) which preys upon the divine faculties of our humanity whereby alone we can respond to the joy, wonder and beauty of existence."

The trouble with cynicism is that it dries up the child heart in a man.

America has become great because of its abounding youth. There are strong signs, when we look at our national face in the glass of letters, that we have become smitten with old age and its bitter impotence. Gray hairs are here and there upon us and we know it not.

It might be well if we pondered the allegory of Coleridge:

"The two images farthest removed from each other which can be comprehended in one dream are I think Isaiah, 'Hear O heavens, and give ear, O earth!'; and Levi of Holywell street, 'Old Clothes!'; both of them Jews you will observe."

THE LISTENING POST

Odd jobs.
The world is full of them waiting to be done.
Indeed, most of us are doers of odd jobs.
Odd jobs being the things that have to be done in the course of human life.

* * *

There are breakfasts to get in the morning.
Food to prepare and tables to lay and dishes to wash.
All odd jobs.
And yet a lot depends on the doing of these odd jobs.

* * *

The way you do the odd jobs you have to do during the day may depend on the kind of odd jobs that were done in preparing your breakfast.
Your good nature may be added to or subtracted from.

* * *

There are household odd jobs to be done.
Office odd jobs to be done.
Factory odd jobs to be done.
Indeed, the world is pretty full of odd jobs.

* * *

But we sometimes think that the little job is not important.
It is the big thing we wish to do.
No window washers are we.
Nor are we dish washers or shoe shiners or floor sweepers.
We are the doers of big thing.

* * *

Well—
Are we?
How many of us are the doers of big things?
The engineer plans a tunnel perhaps.
But it takes a lot of doers of odd jobs to carry it through.
The digger and the shoveler and the engine tender and a dozen and one doers of odd jobs.

* * *

The publisher gets out a newspaper.
That is, he provides the plant and the general scheme and the idea.
But the work is done by a lot of doers of odd jobs.
For the publisher can't do it all himself.

* * *

There is the writer and the reporter and the editor and the printer and the proof reader and the devil.
And good and entertaining for you to read.
But everybody must do the odd job he has to do.
Even the writing of a verse or a Listening Post is a kind of odd job that is to be done.

* * *

And then in the business office are cashiers and clerks and solicitors and others doing things here and there.

* * *

And as each odd job is done well, so is the whole newspaper done well.
In the great department store.
In the factory.
In the bank.
Wherever you may go where men are busy.
There you will find men of all types and genius doing the odd jobs they have to do.

* * *

There are a lot of odd jobs to be done in the universe.
The coming and going of the tides.
The sprouting of the seeds.
The passing of the seasons.
The changes that mark the passing of geological periods.

* * *

The lifting of the water from the sea and its precipitation upon the thirsty earth.
The melting of the snows and the flooding of the water courses.
The bringing out of the leaves upon the trees.
The blossoming and beginning of the yearly store of fruit and grain.

* * *

Yes, the world is a place of odd jobs.
And how happy a world it is depends much on how the odd jobs are done.
Just as your happiness and welfare depends on how you are doing the odd jobs.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Trees—Joyce Kilmer (1886—Killed in action July 30, 1918)

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast:

A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

IF BRYAN GETS TO SENATE

[Richmond Times-Dispatch, Dem.]

If, by the grace of the Florida voters, Mr. Bryan is sent to the senate, it can be taken for granted that he will not allow the country to forget that he is back in the harness and with the bit in his teeth.

There are thousands of people who do not particularly like Mr. Bryan, but who, admiring his fine qualities and his intellectual honesty would like to see him in the senate. They quite understand that his participation in the debates of that body would make more interesting reading than the country usually gets from the forbidding pages of the Congressional Record.

HARDING'S RECORD

[Richmond Times-Dispatch]

The single outstanding claim of the administration to united applause on the year's work relates to a really splendid effort in the international field. In calling the conference on armament and the Pacific, President Harding earned the gratitude, not only of the American people, but of the whole world. Under the able direction of Secretary Hughes, America's part in that conference was one in which every American may take pride. In its broad aspects the conference was a shining success; precisely what it will mean to the world's stability and progress none may yet say, but it must be set down as having marked the opening of a new and better way in international relations, and as having dissipated ominous clouds. Mr. Harding called this conference, and there can be no justification for any effort to deprive him of the credit for the conception and initiative.

It is too early to say that Mr. Harding is, or is not, the man for the times. His conception of the presidency is well known, and he is conforming his course to it. On the whole, he is leaving congress to itself, and congress is playing heck. Perhaps it will do better after the people have lopped off 75 per cent of its unwieldy majority; but it must be admitted—making fair allowance for a sensible stroke here and there—that during the past year Mr. Harding's legislative partners have made "party government" look rather like thirty cents.

THE DISCRIMINATING BRITON

[Washington Star]

Many Englishmen, if the choice were possible, would doubtless be willing to sacrifice several novelties rather than lose one regular statesman like Lloyd George.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

There aren't many of us who would not be mortally offended were we told that we lack in common sense. And yet there are many of us that prove it in the actions that speak so much louder than words. If you don't believe the statement, go to the newspapers just one day. Search them, and jot down the proofs.

Here are just a few, thus secured:

Man buries his savings of years in the ground—is frantic when he finds that they have been dug up and appropriated by some one.

Another man is known to have kept his in a small black tin box. At his death, the whole family searched to no effect.

Man buys $10,000 worth of bogus oil stock.

Thousands swindled in a get-rich-quick scheme.

Woman attempts to poison her husband.

Ruin overtakes family who have lived beyond their income for years. Creditors obtain judgment against them.

Man of eighty-three marries girl of fifteen.

Is it necessary to prolong the list? Cupidity and the heart seem to be the most powerful motives in life to make people lose their heads and indulge in strange freaks. Not one of these but knew the purpose and general safety of banks, not one but who might have obtained the advice of disinterested men of good financial standing as to their investments. Every one knows that at its best marriage is a lottery—with no acquaintance, or between extreme age and youth, it amounts to a crime. Every one knows that living beyond one's income, or committing a crime, is sure to meet its logical result some day.

Why not use the common sence we have? We are no exceptions to the general rule, however smart we think ourselves.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

As in the case of Burch, so in that of Mrs. Obenchain, the jury disagreed. Both of the defendants, it is said, will be tried again. This will mean a great expense of time and money. Probably it will mean nothing else. The power to punish crime, or to establish innocence, seems to have been wrested from the criminal courts.

HENRY JAMES

Probably the feeling of the public as to the guilt of the pair is fairly indicated by the standing of the two juries. The Burch jury was eleven to one for conviction, the other, nine to three for conviction. It is difficult to escape the conclusion that the minority in each instance was as firmly committed to acquittal at the start of the trial, as after the summing up of the evidence. The tests applied to the fitness of women to serve on juries in matters involving capital offense are likely to be interpreted as militating against their acceptance.

In ration to the crime with which the two mentioned are charged, popular judgment, so far as possible to ascertain, is that if they were not culpable, they could have demonstrated the truth at the time of arrest, and saved themselves from a long period in jail, and the ordeal of trial.

Judicial procedure is no science. It has nothing suggestive of mathematical certainty. In countless cases the virtual assurance of guilt, entertained by the intelligent portion of the community, is ignored by a jury even when emphasized by sworn and undisputed testimony.

Persons in the habit of patronizing bootleggers should take warning from the findings of Enforcement Director Hazeltine. After analysis of many samples of so-called whisky, hawked by illicit dealers, he says that not a single pure one has been found. Most of them are frankly and rankly poison.

Part of the problems of prohibition seem likely to be settled by the high mortuary list among consumers. There still are individuals who would rather run the risk of blindness or dissolution than to miss a drink, but statistics show that they are dying off fast.

A young chap in Detroit, just out of jail, but with the prospect of another prison experience, had been left $150 a month by his father's will. Rebelling against this provision, he managed to have the court allow him a lump sum of $1,600,000.

There could be little question but that the man would have been far better off under the first arrangement. With good health, a decent amount of ambition, and an assured income of $150 a month, in addition to that he could earn, any one worth while could succeed.

The chronic speeder and waster, given a fortune to play with, virtually is doomed to failure.

Sometimes a good friend, unknown as such before receipt of his letter, writes to state that he agrees with this column pretty well, or that he doesn't.

Naturally a writer purrs at receipt of praise, and yet if hardened by experience, it is not difficult for him to take a wallop with a smile. He knows that everybody has a right to an opinion, and that he is not the wisest person in the world by considerable.

The chief of police of Los Angeles says that an honest man could not hold the position. This naturally is taken as an intimation that he intends to retire. For the probabilities are that he is exactly right in his assertion.

No man in the world could direct a police force if he had a mess of politicians grabbing him by the lapels or hanging to his coattails. Men who appeared to be competent and trustworthy have made the attempt and have had to abandon it in disgust.

Young Mr. Dodge of Detroit is to be congratulated. The courts gave him the privilege despite his millions of staying five days in a jail, where the influences are more uplifting than those among which he is wont to cavort.

There is a chance that he emerged sober, and wiser than when he went in. He ought to thank the court for shutting him away from a world full of temptations.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I had a grand chance to get sarcastic last night. And so I took it. I do a fool thing like that every now and then. Sometimes I get away with it. Sometimes I crawl in a dark hole and hate myself.

"I tell you," said the young man in the smoker, "that our men were killed by their officers in France without a trial."

He was a fine, upstanding, clear-eyed young man. On his breast he wore half a dozen medals and ribbons and that sort of thing. Decorations of that sort inspire one with respect and so I listened with interest.

"Our company was ordered to go over the top," he said, "but the barrage was too heavy and we wouldn't go. So the second loot he dragged his gat.

"'You won't go, hey,' he says. 'I'll make you go!'

"And he shot ten men. Emptied his gat. He reloaded and ordered us forward again and we wouldn't go. So he shot ten more. He emptied his gat three times—shot thirty men—before we finally went forward."

Right there is where I went into action. I cross-questioned that lad. I'll say I did. I shot it into him hard. I told him that an army gat doesn't hold ten shots. I poked fun at him. The youngster got pretty savage and bitter himself and finally rose with a yowl and went away. All the other men in the smoker looked at me and nodded approval and grinned. I had defeated the common sort of liar who loves to bring discredit on other people—who does not hold even his country's flag sacred in his mud throwing tournaments. It was a field day for me. I walked down the aisle to my seat with the air of General Pershing just after he has been kissed by the morning detail of French generals. On my way the boy with the decorations stopped me.

"I did see it," he said passionately. "It is all true. I—I——"

And he burst into tears. Then the young fellow in the same seat winked at me and followed me out and I got the explanation. Every ribbon and decoration that boy wore he had earned in the middle kettle of that hell they had in France. He is a hero if there ever was one in war.

But he has broken down. He is a "shell shock" case. And I had to pick that boy—of all the boys on earth—on whom to whet my nasty humor.

Of course, I retracted and apologized. But what good does that do?

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

SIR GEDDES TO BE CHARTER DAY ORATOR

University of California to Celebrate With Exercises

Charter day exercises at the University of California were celebrated today in the Greek theatre. The Right Honorable Sir Auckland Geddes, K. C. B., was the Charter day speaker.

The class of 1923 dedicated a marble chair in the Greek theatre to David P. Barrows, president of the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrows, the British ambassador and Lady Geddes, received members of the faculty, alumni, guests of the university at the annual Charter day reception, at Hearst hall on the university campus. The party will attend the alumni banquet this evening as guests of honor, at the Hotel Oakland.

U. C. Summer Session Curriculum

Special attention has been devoted to the development of the courses in physical education so that swimming, tennis, dancing and sports of all kinds will be given in the coming summer session of the University of California, according to W. M. Hart, dean of the summer session.

Mrs. Lydia Sheffield Mackie is to instruct the women's classes in swimming. Her work will include all phases of that sport, from elementary strokes to life-saving and diving.

Miss Mary Shafter, whose work as instructor of dancing has won her recognition throughout the country, will direct an advanced class in folk dancing. Special attention will be paid to the folk and national dances that are best adapted for festivals and pageants as well as those that are practical for class work.

Other courses to be given by Miss Shafter are dramatic and folk dancing for playgrounds and elementary schools, and dramatic expression for grammar and high schools. Miss Shafter will dramatize fairy tales and stories from the primers and show how best to produce school festivals and dance pantomimes. The problems of costuming, dyeing, lighting and staging will be dealt with from the practical, producing standpoint.

Miss Gertrude K. Colby of Columbia university is to teach natural dancing. Simple dance studies and the fundamentals of natural technic leading toward relaxation, freedom of movement, poise and rhythm, will be taught.

Social dancing will be under the direction of Miss Alys Miller, a former pupil of Louis Shalif of New York. Miss Miller will teach ballroom dancing and two days a week will be devoted to dances which visitors may attend.

Dr. Haven Emerson of Cornell has been engaged to give health supervision in public schools. This important and timely subject will cover school sanitation and epidemic control, as well as questions of environment and personal factors.

A leaflet describing the courses in detail may be obtained from the dean of summer sessions, California hall, University of California, Berkeley.

Annual Report Now Available

The annual report of the college of agriculture and the agricultural experiment station of the University of California for the year 1920-1921 is now off the press. This publication includes the reports of the acting dean of the college of agriculture, the director of the agricultural experiment station, the director of resident instruction and the director of agricultural extension. The major portion of the volume is devoted to the results of experiment station investigations and activities, made public for the first time and supplementing the information given in previous annual reports of the station.

The activities and accomplishments of the division of agricultural extension are reported at length and are notable as covering the first normal period since the war, thereby offering an opportunity to estimate the present benefits of the work among the rural people of the state and its future possibilities. New developments in the education policy of the college of agriculture are outlined in the report.

The enrollment of students in the college of agriculture and the university farm school at Davis during the year 1919-1920 are tabulated. Copies of the report are available for those interested and can be secured by addressing the director of the agricultural experiment station, University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

Milk Production Costs

Record taking in the state-wide study of milk production costs is well under wal under the direction of R. L. Adams, professor of farm management, University of California, college of agriculture. Studies are in progress in 424 selected, typical dairies in 24 counties. The owners of these dairies are offering all possible cooperation and help.

The initial inventory taking came to a close March 1, after which time the work will center on the monthly records. The records will show in detail any changes in the milking herd of the individual dairies, items of cost and total production. Three field men are employed full time and 24 collaborators give part time to the work.

The purposes of this investigation are to secure actual and up-to-date knowledge of what it costs to produce whole milk and butterfat; to promote a closer relationship between the dairyman and the consumer; and to provide information and facts for possible readjustment of the dairy industry in different localities.

Most Valuable Crop in 1920

Hay was California's most valuable crop in 1920 and alfalfa has a great deal to do with this leadership, according to H. M. Butterfield of the University of California college of agriculture. The alfalfa crop amounted to about one-third more than that of Kansas, California's nearest competitor.

Indirectly, alfalfa has had an important bearing upon the dairy and swine industry, for, with but few exceptions, those counties which are large producers of alfalfa lead in dairy and swine production.

Persons interested in alfalfa culture are invited to send to the University of California college of agriculture, at Berkeley for circular No. 87 on alfalfa, or to enroll for the correspondence course on "Alfalfa Culture."

Secretary of Wool Growers

Mr. Winchester Wing, a graduate of the University of California college of agriculture, has been elected secretary of the California Wool Growers' association. Mr. Wing specialized in animal husbandry while in the state university. The headquarters of the association will be located in San Francisco.

Poultry Farming

Effective business management is necessary in the operation of a commercial poultry farm; according to figures compiled by J. E. Dougherty, associate professor of poultry husbandry, and S. Gossman, assistant in poultry husbandry at the University of California. A poultry keeper's efficiency as a business manager will determine the size of his profits.

In a survey made by Professor Daugherty, farm A averaged 176 eggs per hen and gave a net profit on each hen of $4.43 for the year 1919. Farm B, with an average yield per hen of 143 eggs, netted a profit of $1.30. Farm C has an average produltion of 140 eggs and made a profit of $2.08. Farm D received 129 eggs per hen and made a profit of $2.12. These farms were all in the same county and had equally favorable locations. Each was a 1000-hen farm and all costs, including interest on investment, taxes, fire insurance, hired labor, etc., were included in the expense when figuring net profit.

Such instances are typical according to Professor Dougherty. The human element, or the ability of the poultry keeper is the most vital factor governing success or failure. Not only the hen herself but the "man behind the hen" must be equal to the job.

Goat Milk Can Be Separated

Goat milk can be separated with only a very slight loss of fat in the skim-milk, reports G. D. Turnbrok, assistant professor of dairy industry, University of California. This fact was shown in a recent experiment in which two types of separators were used, one of the disc type and the other of the tubular type.

The cream tested with the disc type separator was 34 per cent while the other tested 33 per cent. In both cases the skim-milk tested 0.015 per cent. These results indicate that either type of machine is efficient in separating goat milk. The cream secured in the tests was churned in a hand churn. It broke readily and produced a fair grade of butter.

Psychology Coprses to Be Offered

"The Psychology of Musical Talent" is the subject of an unusual course to be given during the inter-session at the University of California by Esther Allen Gaw of the San Francisco State Teachers' college. Mrs. Gaw has made an extensive study of the basic capacities underlying musical talent, and of the psychological measurement of these capacities. She will also conduct a course on "The Psychology of Daily Life."

During the summer session, Madison Bently, professor of psychology and director of the psychological laboratories at the University of Illinois, is to offer courses of equal interest in psychology. His lectures will deal with such subpects as the audience, the crowd, the state, the public, social products in language, custom, fashion and belief; and individual differences in ability and accomplishments.

U. C. Professor Experiments

Deciduous fruit trees grown in tanks can use as much water as is made avaflable to them, according to F. J. Veihmeyer, assistant professor of irrigation investigations of the University of California college of agriculture. This fact was established in recent studies conducted by Professor Veihmeyer at Mountain View, Santa Clara county.

Young prune trees under such treatment in some cases used nearly twice as much water as in the others but grew practically the same amount. The rapidity with which trees during the growing season take moisture from the soil to the depth occupied by the roots indicates the practical impossibility of maintaining a uniform moisture condition of the soil except for very brief periods of time. This is a condition often specified as necessary in publications dealing with fruit growing.

Recent enrollments for agricultural correspondence courses at the University of California have been heavy, according to H. M. Butterfield, supervisor of these courses.

During the month of January there were 234 enrollments, which is a greater number for one month than any month since the early part of 1920. Although over 44,000 students have enrolled for one or more of these courses since they have been started, the courses still seem to attract a great deal of interest.

Twenty-eight different agricultural courses are now available and several new ones are being prepared. Circular No. 114, describing the courses, may be obtained on application to the University of California college of agriculture, Berkeley.

Agricultural Bulletins

The mailing list of the University of California agricultural experiment station now totals 40,000 names, according to Miss Mary A. Phinney, who is in charge of the mailing department. This is an increase of 30,000 over the number 10 years ago.

From 100 to 300 requests for bulletins are received daily, many of which are from people outside the state who are contemplating moving to California and desire information on the kind of crops grown and existing agricultural conditions. An average of 200,000 copies of experiment station publications are sent out in the course of a year.

The men who read the agricultural bulletins are for the most part the young, enterprising farmers of the state who are interested in learning more scientific methods of farming. This was proved by the fact that when the young men went away to war the bulletin mailing list dropped to half its number. At the close of the war the list resumed its normal proportions.

ASSASSIN LOSES EAR IN REVENGE

BUENOS AIRES, March 14 (By Mail to the United Press).—The old legal code that provided "an eye for an eye" was literally fulfilled recently in connection with the political murder of the governor of the province of San Juan, Dr. Amable Jones, only in this case it was "an ear for an ear." Following the murder it was discovered that some one, apparently one of the assassins, had cut the lobe off of one of the victim's ears, perhaps for a souvenir. Several days later a number of men were arrested charged with knowledge of the crime and thrown into jail. One of them, supposed to be the actual murderer, later was attacked while in jail, by "persons unknown," and when found by a jailkeeper later the lobe on one of his ears had been neatly severed.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

WHAT RILED UP THE WHALE ANOTHER TIME

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"No, Mistah Noah wouldn't listen to what anybody told him." The red dog shook his head sadly. "Unless you think the stars are folks. He'd pay attention to them. He said you could believe your own eyes and your own ears, but there were two sides to every tongue—the side you saw when it wagged and the other one you didn't see.

"That was surely true of the raven. When he told Shem he'd fixed things up with the angry whale, that was one side. But when he told his wife how he'd fixed things, that was the other. And it meant just the opposite of what Shem understood.

"The whale slouched off to think over the message Shem had sent him—and you know how the raven had turned that wrong-side over his wicked tongue. It took him a long, long time—maybe because his head is so big a thought gets lost inside it. But he knew it was there because it stung him like a mosquito bite. 'Not big enough, eh?' he'd rumble. 'Not big enough?' And he'd squirt up a water spout to clear his throat and rumble louder the next time. Way 'long toward morning he said something more. 'Not big enough to move that Ark, ain't I? I'll just show 'em!'

"That was when he flounced clear out of the water as if something had struck him. And so it had—an idea! He swirled around and went for the craft until he hit it head-on, bump, bang!

"No, no one had heard him coming because every one was asleep. And no one heard him steal away again. I guess that was because he was kind of s'prised at the way his nose hurt him. Or maybe he'd used up that idea and had to take time to think up a new one. Anyway, he was quiet.

"But the Ark wasn't. Tongues wagged then, I can tell you. All but the elephant's and he was tooting so loud on his trumpet of a trunk that Ham couldn't make him hear orders. Mister Noah was sure they were aground, and he wanted them to throw out the anchor right away quick, so they wouldn't float off again. Then the elephant found the mice in the anchor chain and he tooted a different tune."

"Did you ever hear why that mountain of a beast was so afraid of mice?" asked Dr. Muskrat.

"He said if they got in his breathe-holes they'd fit tight and smother him. But maybe he was talking with the wrong side of his tongue when he said it." (The elephant jokes all the time.)

"Ah." The Doctor nodded. "And how about the raven? I s'pect he was hovering 'round."

Baptism of Dog Causes Ousting of Preacher

Buster, owned by Mrs. Melbourne Porter of Brookline, Mass., probably is the only dog ever "baptized," in accordance with the rites of the Presbyterian church. The baptism, said by Mrs. Porter to have been performed by Rev. Edwin Curtis, resulted in the expulsion of Dr. Curtis as pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Brookline.

WELDING TORCH BURNS EYESIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—If you want to lose your eyesight, all you have to do is to gaze at an electric welding torch for from one to five minutes. The loss may be only temporary, or it may be permanent.

This is the declaration of the Oakland emergency hospital physicians, who recently have treated several men for temporary blindness because they stopped to watch electric welders repairing street car tracks.

"Most people do not know the danger from the invisible but terribly powerful ultra-violet rays," said a recent announcement. "These are the invisible, highly destructive light rays given off by the electric arc.

"Men who work with electric welding machines know enough to protect their eyes with colored glasses, but the uninformed will look at the arc. It only requires a few seconds to do the damage. The retina of the eye is almost instantly burned and inflammation soon sets in.

"Gazing at the arc with the naked eye for five minutes may result in permanent blindness. Temporary blindness has resulted from less than a minute's exposure. In any event, the eyes are seriously injured, and although the immediate effect might only be swelling and inflammation, the eyes will give out sooner in years to come."

Ruth, aged six, did not understand the meaning on an encore and was very much disgusted with the audience at a recent children's concert in which she took part.

"I just know that we didn't make a single mistake," she exclaimed, "yet the people down in front made such a fuss that we had to do it all over again."

Ireland Now Has Own Postage Stamps

Folks in the "Land of the Shamrock" now are licking their country's own improvised postage stamps. With the inauguration of the Irish Free State, under terms of the Anglo-Irish treaty, the government of Ireland has begun the issuance of Irish stamps, as shown in this picture.

The Irish showed what they thought of King George by simply stamping his visage, in Gaelic words, "Provisional Government of Ireland." It saved printing new stamps, which is to be done as soon as those with King George's printed-over photo run out.

When two women exchange compliments the recording angel is kept as busy as when two men trade horses.

FARMERETTES ARE ANGRY AT PROF.

CORVALLIS, Ore., March 23.—Will the lady farmer in the future eschew her biscuits and her chickens, her darning and her sewing to chew the succulent straw as she chirrups a span on the loamy field Who shall say?

Oregon Agricultural college "coed farmerettes" maxed indignant over the declaration of a University of California professor of husbandry that girls studying agriculture are less attractive in feminine charms, less fitted for the home, and lower their prospects for marriage.

Several of the dozen co-eds in agriculture denied the California professor's allegations in part and in toto.

"I'd rather drive a hay derrick than sew," declares pretty Mary Cusack, of Portland. "Isn't this education worth as much as home economics, stenography or dancing, if one likes it?" demands Mary Haight, of Saginaw.

"Running a farm beats running a husband all hollow," averred at least ten of the faithful dozen. "But that doesn't say we won't make good wives just because we know when to plant potatoes."

SOME CHICKEN, YES?

VANCOUVER, Wash., March 16.—Lloyd Anderson owns a mousing hen. Biddy catches 'em coming and going, on the move or quiescent, using her beak and claws with fatal effect.

Just when biddy killed her first mouse her owner does not assume to know. But now, whenever he enters the feed house the hen follows behind. Anderson shifts a bag of grain, out pops Mr. Rodent, and away goes Biddy in hot pursuit. It's a fast mouse that can beat her in a stern chase.

Woodrow Wilson Opposes Four-Power Treaty

Former President Woodrow Wilson has joined forces with Senator William E. Borah, republican "irreconcilable," to defeat ratification of the four-power Pacific treaty devised by the recent Washington arms conference. Wilson has written Senator Borah, outlining his reasons for believing the treaty to be "an iniquitous alliance of the wrong." This latest photo of the former president shows how he has aged from his illness.

REAL WAR VET'S MOTHER DIES

STOCKTON, Calif., March 23.—The Karl Ross post of the American Legion here has received $45,000 under the will of the late Mrs. Jay A. Hinchman, widow of a Modesto attorney. Her entire estate was valued at $48,000.

The bequest, according to the will, is to be used in caring for the sick, indigent and otherwise disabled members of the post.

Mrs. Hinchman had no children, or heirs closer than cousins in the east. Her grandmother was a cousin of George Washington's.

BUY A DIRECTORY CARD

A Year Ago Today

(From the Glendale Daily Press, for March 23, 1921)

The city charter was the topic of Mayor Dwight Stephenson's talk before the West Glendale Progressive club held last night at the high school. T. W. Watson, city manager, explained the sources and developments of the city water supply. Dr. Carl Wilson, laboratory director for the water department who has charge also of the laboratory work for the Glendale water department spoke on the quality of the Glendale water supply.

Two communications read to the board of directors of the chamber of commerce at their postponed meeting last night indicated greater industrial developments for the city. One communication was from the newly organized Tropico Pottery company and hinted at greater developments at the plant. The other proposition was from the Bedell company of Los Angeles. That company proposed the installation of a modern ice plant in Glendale.

The Bentley-Schoneman Lumber company started a night shift working last night in their lumber yards to supply the demand for lumber that is constantly increasing in Glendale as more people are realizing the advantages of owning their own homes in this fast growing city.

The directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday at their meeting heard the proposition of Mr. Bruess, formerly of the Ohio State Rubber Tire company, of Portland, Ohio, to open up a tire manufacturing plant in Glendale. He also plans to operate a rubber reclamation plant where waste rubber can be utilized and made into hard rubber articles. Another project planned by Mr. Bruess was the installation of a cotton mill. Mr. Bruess would not state what inducements the city would have to offer to secure these industries but said that the offers would have to come from the city without his prompting. The site selected by Mr. Bruess for his proposed industrial center is just over the line out of Glendale. The chamber of commerce will consider Mr. Bruess' proposition.

MARSHAL JOFFRE DUE ON COAST

PORTLAND, Ore., March 23.—Marshal Joffre, well loved French general and "hero of the Marne," will reach Portland April 2 on his tour of the United States.

Joffre is now in the Orient, and will visit the United States as part of his tour around the world. Joffre's party is composed of ten persons, and will land in Vancouver, B. C., March 28. Madame Joffre and their daughter are accompanying the general.

BRITISH WOMEN LAUNCH MOVEMENT TO GAIN CONTROL OF GOVERNMENT

British women will "seek their own" in politics. A movement to organize a political party composed exclusively of women today is in full swing in England. The leaders, it is declared, are hopeful of gaining control of the government, inasmuch as there are 2,000,000 more women than men in Great Britain. Besides the Viscountess Rhondda, who has just been granted a seat in the House of Lords, there are other Peeresses who are entitled to seats with the peers of the Realm. Seven of these are shown in the accompanying group. They may not, of course, take the seats to which they are entitled without an invitation from the House of Lords.

NEW WINDMILL STORE OPENS HERE

On Saurday, March 25, the Van de Kamp firm of Holland Dutch Bakers will open another of its unique windmill stores at the corner of Seneca and Tropico avenues on the outskirts of Glendale. These stores, which have been aptly called "Little Bits of Old Holland," are rapidly becoming vastly popular among the housewives of Los Angeles and vicinity. Their picturesque appearance, coupled with the valuable service which they render to the residents of the communities where they are located, make them centers of interest and economy. Quality bakery products of the Van de Kamp Holland Dutch bakers at exactly the same prices as are in effect in the Van de Kamp down town stores, are handled.

The object in opening these blue windmills in various sections of the city and its environs has been to serve the housewife with every kind of bakery product that she may desire without causing her the inconvenience of a trip down town.

A valuable feature of this latest windmill store will be the fact that it will remain open all day Sunday in order that motorists may supply all of their wants for Sunday excursions and picnics. Its convenient location on the thoroughfare between Hollywood, Glendale and Pasadena will be a saving of time to motorists, who may stop at the windmill on their way home and procure all necessary bakery supplies.

The "Windmill Stores" of the Van de Kamp Holland Dutch Bakers are different in both plan and appearance from any chain of stores of any description in the United States, and the opening of this newest one is a distinct addition to the community which it will serve.

Fools throw kisses, but wise men deliver them in person.

CIVIC BETTERMENT LEAGUE IS NEW BURBANK UNIT

League Organizes Permanently for Continuous Work

The Civic Betterment League of this city has been declared a permanent organization, and will function not only during the present campaign for city trustee, but through the future in matters as indicated by its name.

Thursday night a membership meeting will be held in Lovering hall at which it is hoped that every member will be present and also bring as many prospective members as possible and any person interested in the activities of the League and desiring an opportunity to vote for the officers, is invited to attend this meeting. Permanent officers will be elected and probably committees appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws.

A mass meeting will be held in the auditorium of the grammar school one night next week, but the date is not certainly known. In addition to this, there will be sectional meetings at which the candidates endorsed by the League will make short talks and explain their position on the various important questions of civic nature.

Several committees have already been appointed. The one in charge of the sectional meetings is W. S. Walker, W. E. Roskam, P. J. Moran, G. R. Pendall and Ed Pomeroy. The committee for looking after the mas meeting is: A. E. W. Yale, I. S. Watson and Earl Smith. The endorsements committee is composed of the following: W. E. Roskam, G. A. Walton, E. L. Mansell, Wm. Clark, C. A. Zwalina, E. L. Brett, Homer Jones, T. A. Sinclair, H. F. Ricketts, A. S. Nicholson ad D. F. Geil.

The four candidates for city trustee which have been endorsed by the League are: J. C. Crawford, E. J. Jackson, I. S. Watson and John Neilson.

BURBANK DIME STORE GROWS

The business of Napper & Maynard, the firm owning the ten cent store and holding the lease on the store they now occupy and the room room adjoining, has grown to such an extent that they will open the additional room.

They have had numerous opportunities to sub-let the vacant room, but decided to keep it for themselves until such time as their own business would require more space. That time has arrived and work is now in progress toward preparing the room with counters and shelves which will be duplicated in appearance of those used in the present quarters; in fact, some of the shelving will be moved over into the new room as the partition will be taken out, making one of the largest store rooms in the city.

One reason for utilizing this additional space is to carry a line of higher priced goods than can now be handled under the price limit which is twenty-five cents. Mr. Napper says the people continue to call for larger and higher priced articles and to fill this demand the firm will carry staple articles running to one dollar of more in price. He added that the present store had always taken care of itself and that business was very satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Kiser of New Castle, Pa., who have been spending several weeks with J. L. Cochran, brother of Mrs. Kiser, and with Mr. and Mrs. D. S. MRS, REYNOLDS IS CANDIDATE IN TUJUNGA

Tujunga Tile Company's Plant Will Be Ready to Operate Soon

TUJUNGA, March 23.—Mrs. B. B. Reynolds, who lives at the corner of San Ysidro and Los Angeles streets, has announced her intention of becoming a candidate for school trustee at the election to be held on March 31. Mrs. Reynolds has taken an active interest in the school through her work in the Parent-Teacher association and has been persuaded to become a candidate by members of that body. Through her position in charge of recent plays and entertainments given by the P.-T. A. and the chamber of commerce Mrs. Reynolds has become known as a worker and public spirited woman.

This candidacy is the second to be announced, that of Mrs. Guy Barry having been announced yesterday. There is still time for the filing of announcement statements with the clerk of the school board, Jud Jenkins.

New Tujunga Industry

What is probably the latest Tujunga industry is the plant of the Tujunga Tile company, located at Hillcrest drive and Glorietta street. A. W. Jones and Miss Mary E. Williams are owners of the company and have a process for tile making which they have great faith in. They have chosen Tujunga as the place most suited to their present needs. The plant will be in operation within a very short time and will furnish employment for about four people at first. Tiles sufficient for ten squares of roof will be turned out per day.

Sand, cement and asbestos are the principal ingredients of the tile which are made in the usual shape as well as in flat, tapering form, like shingles. Several different colors can be used in the manufacture and the completed product makes a handsome and durable roof.

New Street Lights

New street lights, installation of which was recently ordered by petition of property owners in the district benefitted are rapidly being put in. Prominent street intersections have each been provided with a bracket light by the Edison company, and it is expected that power will be turned on shortly.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

A MATTER OF DIET

We're learning a lot as we live by the way,
The scientists give us some new thing each day.
They get our reactions and complexes, too,
And know, when we doubt, just the right thing to do.
It's not education these days that we need,
Religion or discipline, no, no indeed,
Not wisdom or reading—it's all in the diet
As you will discover the first time you try it.

We'll take little Sammy the schoolboy—he's sick
Of struggling along with his arithmetic;
It is not his head or his heart that's not strong,
The fault's in his stomach, his diet is wrong.
He's been eating mush of his own boyish choosing,
And mush is the thing that his brain is confusing.
We feed him on rabbit a few days and lo!
It does the whole trick, for they multiply so!

And little Jim Jazzer who makes enough noise
For any half dozen of well-behaved boys.
He's been eating mustard, he's too full of pep,
And goes through the day with a double-quick step.
Of tricks and of troubles he proves quite prolific
Because of his diet—it's unscientific,
So feed him on lamb and some sago and custard,
All mild things and flabby, and cut out the mustard.

The athlete for prizes and honor who hustles,
It surely is plain we should feed him on mussels.
And who would think clearly in big things or petty
Must never, no never, indulge in spaghetti;
For that is so tangled and mixed a refection
It must interfere with clear-minded reflection.
Just look at the bees and their methods umbrageous,
They feed on wild thyme and are simply outrageous.

OWN YOUR HOME MAKES CONVERTS

"Nothing has ever struck Glendale that has done so much general good as has this 'Own Your Own Home' week," said Mr. Endicott of the firm of Enlicott & Larson, 116 South Brand boulevard. "The real estate buyers as well as the agents and builders have entered into this proposition with a will and as a result homes are being purchased by those who have been in the rent-paying rut for years or ever since the time they first started a home of their own. Then, too, the demand for business property has received a stimulus by this progress week. There is an especially keen demand at this time for North Brand boulevard business property, and some big sales have been made during the past few weeks.

"The far-reaching effect of this 'Own Your Home' week cannot be seen from where we now stand. It will continue to go on and on, and still doubtless be felt through out the entire year, and if another of these weeks can be held a year from this time there is no reason why this building prosperity cannot be kept moving along all the time. We surely are in favor of this building week, and we believe that practically every resident of the state realizes that it is doing a great deal of good."

Hilda M. Cammon, a live wire in the real estate game, is now connected with the Endicott & Larson staff. She was formerly in the real estate business in Kansas City, Mo., where she made a complete success.

DERBY DAYS AT THE GLENDALE

Scenes of Derby days at prominent race tracks are vividly recalled in the William Fox special, "Thunderclap," which opened at the Glendale Theater today. The piece de resistance of many thrills and pleasing situations being one of the most exciting horse races yet seen either on the track or on the silver screen.

It is all so real, so genuine and so thoroughly thrilling that this feature alone is sufficient for the entertainment of those who witness "Thunderclap." There are many other thrills in the life of the little convent girl who finds such a different world when cast among gamblers.

METAL TENNIS RACKET SHOWN

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—The new metal tennis racquet which was designed by William A. Larned, who held the national championship for 13 years, has arrived here and is on display.

The racquet was tried out by Watson Washburn, R. Norris Williams, Howard Voshell, and many other net stars, and has been given their ohek, according to Howard Kinsey.

The frame is of metal tubing, while the handle is of wood. Kinsey points out that it has less wind resistance, since it is made of tubing. He believes that it will become popular, and eventually will put the wooden racquet out of business.

M'ADOO MYSTERY MAN OF WILSON DEMOCRATS

Coast Guard Awaits Announcement of His Objective.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—Will Wm. G. McAdoo go to the next Democratic national convention with the solid votes of the Pacific coast states backing him for president.

These and a lot of other political questions have resulted from McAdoo's announcement that he would give up his New York voting residence and move to Southern California.

The college professions and students of politics are asking other questions. McAdoo moves to California. W. J. Bryan takes his residence to Florida and makes it known that he would look with lenient eye on any action toward forcing the United States senatorship on him.

Many political observers profess to believe that the United States is coming around to the English system of elections, whereby the candidate for political office picks out whatever district in England he likes, and offers himself for election there. Only in the United States such politician would have to gain a legal residence.

In the 1920 Democratic convention, many Democrats now believe McAdoo might have won had his own state been solidly behind him. It is a kind of fetish in conventions that if the delegates in a man's own state are not solid for him, he is a good man to leave alone.

While McAdoo is commonly reputed to be still nursing his presidential ambitions, it is nevertheless pointed out that a seat in the senate might be his second choice. If so, McAdoo's ambitions are dated several years away—1926, to be exact. He has not established residence in time to enter the 1922 lists against Senator Hiram Johnson. In 1926 Senator Samuel Shortridge will come up for re-election. And meantime there is the 1924 presidential campaign to be waged.

That McAdoo will greatly strengthen the Democratic forces in the state is not to be denied. In Southern California particularly a strong Democratic leader has been lacking for some time. Southern California is somewhat of a political enigma. It is nominally Republican, but very much of the independent or Progressive-Republican brand.

It is impossible to predict at present whether or not Johnson will be opposed in the Republican primaries, but it is doubtful that anyone strong enough to give him a race would risk his political chances in such a contest.

How he will fare in the November elections against a strong Democratic opponent is another matter. The Democrats would like to see a Johnson-anti-Johnson split in the Republican party, but do not believe they can cause this.

Who will oppose Johnson is a matter of speculation. The most likely prospect, it is believed, is former Senator James D. Phelan, who was defeated by Shortridge in the 1920 landslide. Phelan ran far ahead of his ticket, and many Democrats give him more than a chance. Phelan is an extremely independent Democrat. He was a reservationist on the league of nations vote. He is at present in Japan, making a study of conditions there, and has sent back no word concerning his attitude. On the other hand many Democrats are urging him as a candidate for governor against William D. Stephens, incumbent.

The other most likely candidate is Gavin McNab, veteran Democratic leader of the state, who has recently been much in the public eye as counsel for Mary Pickford and Roscoe Arbuckle. McNab was offered a position on the shipping board during the Wilson administration, but refused it. Many of McNab's friends doubt that he would be willing to enter a campaign as strenuous as that which a contest with Johnson would entail. McNab has issued a statement that he won't run, but his advocates say other men have changed their minds.

JAYHAWKERS HEAR CALL TO GATHER

All who ever lived in Kansas are called to meet under the auspices of the Kansas Association of Pasadena, for a great picnic reunion, all day, Saturday, April 1, 1922, in Sycamore Grove Park, Los Angeles. Come as early as you can and spend the day with friends. We will have county registers and headquarters so you can find the old neighbors even with ten thousand present. There will be a brief program opening about 2 o'clock, songs, short talks, roll call. The main purpose will be to have a good time and to let the people do the talking. We want to see all the tourists and visitors from the old home. Bring your basket well filled. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the souvenir badges.

Each one who learns of this is asked to pass the word along. Further information may be had of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, office in the Continental National bank, Main and Ninth streets. Phone 10261, where the great Kansas register may be seen.
